at the iniquity of a law punishing the intent to stead slaves in Africa. It tells us there is no law to punish intention in all other matters, and calls 5t "the slavery of criminal jurisprudence." Did it ever occur to the Mercury that the intent to steal slaves is a thing severely punishable in the Southern States? Has it never heard of the punishment of abolition nigger stealers who have been caught only with the intent? Has it never hounded on a mob in lynching some rascal against whom the intent to steal niggers was not even proven, but who has been brought under lynch law because statute law did not reach him? Verily, we believe that even the Charleston Mercury may gather wisdom from the ventilation of the law regarding the slave trade in a South Carolina court.

Our Special Washington Despatch. EFFORTS TO EFFECT THE REMOVAL OF COLLECTOR SCHELL AND MR. BIRDSALL—THE TURIN MISSION— GENERAL PAEZ'S DEPARTURE DELAYED—WHAT IS THOUGHT OF SENATOR HAMMOND'S LATE SPEECH-PROTECTION FOR THE OVERLAND MAIL ROUTES, ETC.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14, 1858. Great efforts, it is said, are being made to induce the President to remove Collector Schell and Mr. Birdsall Pretended confidential communications have been made to newspaper correspondents by interested parties to pr duce an effect, and all sorts of rumors are affoat. It is not likely the President will Brousonize his administration. He knows too well, were he to make removals to day to suit certain men, he would have to do the same to

The steamer Westernport, which it was intended by the Navy Department should be offered to General Pacz and suite to convey them to Venezuela, cannot be ready for should be at home before the elections take place, in th latter part of December, the Secretary of the Navy will find a suitable one within the time required, but the Sc cretary will provide for the occasion. Mr. Paez, son of General Paez, was in Washington, and had an interview with Secretary Toucey about this matter.

An eminent statesman in the government, speaking of Senator Hammond's speech, said: "The man who can make such a speech is fit to be President." Now that the Indian war on the Parific is finished, and part of the forces may be spared from Utah, the Secretary of War will turn his attention to the ample protection o the overland California mail route.

There is a report here that Mr. Wm. F. Ritchie, of Rich mond, is to succeed John M. Daniet at Turin. The state-ment of the tender of that mission to General Ward, of Georgia, and its acceptance by him, is not credited. He goes to China. It is not to be denied that certain influences are known to be at work to retain Daniel, in order that Ritchie may be kept out, it being understood that he was to receive the appointment when a vacancy occurred.

The tendency of affairs in Virginia now go to show that the administration will receive a hearty support in the future, and that Lecompton will be entirely forgotten.

In the theatrical world the topic of the week is the new comedy at Wallack's, which is called, in suspicious English, "Going to the Bad." That is a cockuey expres-sion generally used as we say going down hill, and applied to people who are unsuccessful in business or anything else. In the comedy under review the person who is "going to the bad" is a sympathetic young man, one Peter Potts (Brongham), who, having been rejected by Isabella Dashwood (Miss Gannon), resolves to give himself up to all sorts of wickedness and revenge himself up to society. In this resolution he is aided by his friend Content Hardingham (Lotter), a secret London each Captain Hardingham (Lester), a severe London swell, fragrant with the edors of the Horse Guards, the Junior United Service Club, the drag, the race course and the iron father, and Major Steele (Dyott), a fire-eater of the old style, make up the chief characters in the play. The plot is sketchy, and hardly challenges numerous people to fight doels, and in the ent-he reforms and marries Lucy Johnson, while Miss Dash-wood becomes the Guardsman's bride. The characters of Potts and Hardingham have been capitally drawn, and the ball scene is the most amusing affair of the kind we

The Paraguay Expedition. THE UNITED STATES STEAMER PULTON AT BARBADOES

BARRADORS, Oct. 22, 1858.
During the stay here of the United States steamer Ful ton, one of the vessels of the Paraguay expedition, her captain and officers, as well as those of the other vessels, have been hospitably entertained by the people of the island. Yesterday they dined with the Governor at his country seat, where they doubtless had a pleasant

The officers of the Forty-ninth regiment gave then a mess dinner, which was got up in the best of style, and at which there was the usual interchange of friendly senti-ments. There is, in fact, no end to the dinners, and it was but the other day that they were the guests of some Anglo-American merchants, who, after dinner, took ther out into the country, where they passed the evening in the nouse of one of their entertainers.

The present Governor of the island, Mr. Hicks, is a civi lian. He was formerly secretary of Lord Elgin, and when n Canada was a prominent liberal.

It is understood that the Fulton leaves this place on the 23d inst., and it is thought she will reach Pernambuco on Monday of the following week—say the 1st of November. An effort will be made by the Harriet Lane to get there first, but it is doubtful whether she will succeed.

Mysterious Disappearances.

Owing to the following notices which appeared in the HERALD on Friday, and others which appear from time to time, in regard to missing persons—among which the ex-traordinary disappearance of Mrs. Brannau, wife of an officer in the United States Army, will be particularly remembered—one of our reporters called upon the Deputy Superintendent of Police, Mr. Carpenter, yesterday, to gather what information he could in regard to these curious occurrences.

Mr. Abm. D. Westerveit left his residence in Clinton street, Brooklyn, on Monday, the Sth inst., to visit his relations at Bergen Five Corners, New Jersey. He started themeo to return at four o'clock P. M. the same day, since which he has not been seen or heard from, and as he complained of being ill at the time, much auxiety is felt by his friends for his tafety. He is a man of sorrect habits, amiable disposition, about twenty-eight years of age, about five feet five inches high, dark eyes, no whisters, rather bald, and of pleasant, cordai manners; had on when last seen calf skin boots, drab coat and pants, dark brown overceat and a Nagara hat; wore a hunting case silver watch, gold sleeve buttons, gold studs in the beson of his shirt, and is supposed to have had from $70 to $100 on his person. Any information concerning him left with Dr. Westervelt, at Bergen Five Corners, or with Wm. W. Rose, 65 Cedar street, New York, or 142 Aliantic street, Brooklyn, will be thankfully received by his distressed parents and friends.

Late on Wednerday afternoon Mr. Billings was found by Mr. Hendrickson leaning against a fence, in a state of exhaestion, and unable to give any account of himself. Upon his person was found a card contaming his friends: didress in New York, which reminded Mr. Hendrickson of the notice he had previously seen in the papers. Information was sent to his friends, by whom arrangements were made last evening to bring him home. Mr. Billings is reported to be laboring under a temporary it of lisanty, arising, it is teared, from a softening of the brain. He had on his person a gold chronometer watch and a diamond pin, valued together at $1,200. This circumstance led to the suspecient that he had failed into bad hands, and a detachment of police have been engaged for two days in making search for him.

Interprise of a New York Merchant.—Thirety thousand dollars sacrificed by one ladies' man.—We record with satisfaction an act of notable enterprise on the part of Mr. M. H. LICHTENSTEIN, No. 387 Broadway. With characteristic promptitude, he sold off, the other day, at auction, his entire stock of ribbons and dress trimmings, and without the slightest regard to the pecuniary loss, in order to repleciable his magasin de modes with entirely new styles just received from Europe, and perfectly beautiful in their brilliancer, novelty and variety. This is the startling manner in which New York spirit manifesta itself beside the plooding dulness of other cities. And yet the shrewd Lichtenstein, by submitting to this loss, has realized an enormous prott. Such a sum in ready cash enabled him to approach effectively importers in distress for funds to meet their obligations, and be bought up all their invoices of choice goods on terms himmensely below cost. He thus formishes his lady customers with incomparably the fresheat and most capitaling fashious to be found on the American continent, and at prices positively astocisting in their cheapness. In fact, he disputes of the most separant and over styles, now, exactly as low as he formerly sold those which had grown antiquated and uninteresting.

ger's main relance, Mile. Piccolomini, has made a solid triumph. If perfection cannot be claimed for her in each of the four parts—Violetta, Leonora (Trovatore,) Zerlina and Serpina (La Serva Padrona,)—it may at any rate be admit ted that in each of them she has improved her position with the public. Piccolomini has the rare gift of placing her self at once on the best terms with her audience. In point of fact, no one can resist her. We should like to see the Masetto that could resist the battery of such : Zerlina. And, apropos to Zerlina, every one who has not or who has heard the "Don Giovanni" will take notice that to-night it will be performed for the last time, as the Don himself has to go to Havana, where he is engaged with Maretzek, who has annexed Havana, musically, to New York. The opera is given to night at the old prices and it will undoubtedly attract another immense house the month, is a malinee on Thursday (Thanksgiving Day) the revival of "Robert ie Diable," with Gazzaniga and La-borde; the production of the "Nozze di Figaro," with Picna, Mile. The part played by Mr. Brougham was written for Mr. Robson. degree. It was this natural difference alone that prevented Mr. Brougham's performance from being perfectly good. The part is weighty, and the actor seemed some times to feel it. Indeed, we have not seen Mr. Brougham play so carefully, so well and so conscientional; for a long time, and he triumphed over a difficult part, written, as we have said, for an artist whose idiesyncracies are quite opposite to those of the author of "Pocahontas." So Mr. Brengham's changes from the sorious to the comic side of the character, if not so quiet and so subtle as the words would seem to denote, are still very well done, and Mr. Brougham may count Peter Potts among his best successes. Mr. Lester looked like a young men, but failed to express that hard insomeigner of the class the author represents. The others were good in

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HENALD.

I notice in yesterday's HERALD an article on "ports of call for the Atlantic steamships in Ireland," in which it long, crosses midiand direct from Galway to Dublin. The narrowest part of St. George's channel is between Dublin and Holyhead, and the transit is made in about four hours between these points.

On the contrary, the steamer which makes Cork its port of call lands its passengers there at a much greater distance from Dublin, upwards of 240 miles from Liverpoot, and about half that distance direct from the main land. The latitude of Galway is $3.15 north; that of Cork is 51.54, and Liverpoot 53.22 north; and any one by looking at the map will see at a glance that a roundabout voyage of at least 500 miles is saved by those who take the Galway in preference to the Liverpool steamers. If landed at Cork they are obliged to go north by rail a much greater distance to reach Publin than if they crossed from Galway, going out of their way to do so quite unnecessarily, and at a uscless expenditure of time and money. If the shortest voyage, shortest line of rails, and shortest distance across St. George's channel, are desirable for tra-
